(Discharge Date) N/A	(Duties/Special Training)  The United States Air Force First Sergeant is an expeditionary leader serving in a time honored special duty position, rich in custom and tradition. The first sergeant works directly for and derive their authority from the unit commander at home station, deployed commander when deployed, and serves as the commander's critical link within the unit for all matters concerning enlisted members. As the vital link between the commander, enlisted personnel and support agencies, the first sergeant must ensure the enlisted force understands the commander's policies, goals, and objectives and must also ensure support agencies are responsive to the needs of unit personnel and their families. Additionally, first sergeants are accountable to respond to the needs of unit members 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and may at times, be required to work long and irregular hours, travel extensively to and from mission destinations. They must remain vigilant for, and use the necessary authority to resolve iss
